WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—
The text of President Roosevelt's speech follows:
Since my annual message to the congress on January 4 last, I have not addressed the general public over the air. In the many weeks since that time the congress has devoted itself to the arduous task of formulating legislation necessary to the country's welfare. It has made and is making distinct progress.

Before I come to any of the specific measures, however, I want to leave in your minds one clear fact. The administration and the congress are not proceeding in any haphazard Vitally Affected by

The administration and the congress are not proceeding in any haphazard fashion in this task of government. Each of our steps has a definite relationship to every other step. The job of creating a program for the nation's welfare is, in some respects, like the building of a ship. At different points on the coast where I often visit, they build great sea-going ships. When one of these ships is under construction and the steel frames have been set in the keel, it is difficult for a person who does not know ships to tell how it will finally look when it is sailing the high seas:

The objective of the nation has greatly changed in three years. Before that time individual self-interest and group self-interest self-interest and group selfishness were paramount in public thinking. The general good was at a discount.

The general good was at a discount. PEOPLE OF AMERICA FEELING BETTER.

Three years of hard thinking have changed the picture. More and more people, because of clearer thinking and a better understanding, are considering the whole rather than a mere part relating to one section or one crop, or one industry, or an individual private occupation. That is a tremendous gain for principles of democracy. The overwhelming majority of people in this country know how to sift the wheat from the chaff in what they hear and what they read. They know that the process of the constructive rebuilding of America cannot be done in a day or a year, but that it is being done in spite of the few who seek to confuse them and to profit by their fuse them and to profit by their confusion. WASHINGTON, April 28 .- (P)ounding a new note of optimism, President Roosevelt tonight outlined his work relief program to the nation in a speech pledging "no sectional, no political distinctions" in distributing the $4,000,000,000 fund.

Speaking from the oval room of the White House in one of his radio fireside chats, the president said that never since my inauguration in March, 1933, have I felt so unmistakably the atmosphere of recovery."

He summoned all citizens to keep a watchful eye that the work program should be "the most efficient and cleanest example of public enterprise the world has ever seen," and laid down a six-prouged diagram of prin-ciples to govern the spending in his work program. Then Mr. Roosevelt enumerated a series of legislative proat this session. Topping this list was his economic security legislation, which already has been passed by the house. Wounds he received Saturday night, when he was shot by a policeman, proved fatal last night to Fred Zellas, negro, of 231 South street. He died at Grady hospital. The negro was shot twice by Patrolman J. H. Parham, who reported that when he attempted to arrest him on "suspicion of bootlegging" the negro attacked him. Police asserted they found a gallon of whisky in a sack Zellas carried.

A general sales tax continued to be the most taked of plan for raising the $10,500,000 a year needed for the schools but a number of well-informed sources said it was losing ground, that a majority of the lawmaxers would not vote for it if another method could be found, and that legislative leaders were opposed to it and would see that some other plan is found.

Governor Sholtz, President Hodges, of the senate, and Speaker Bishop, of the house, have said they did not favor a sales tax. Hodges said he would take the floor in opposition to it and a reliable source said Bishop probably would do the same.

I am reminded sometimes of what President Wilson once said: "So many people come to Washington who know things that are not so, and so few people who know anything about what the people of the United States are thinking about." That is why I occasionally leave this scene of action for a few days to go fishing or back home at Hyde Park, so that I can have a chance to think quietly about the country as a whole. This duty of seeing the country in a long-range perspective is one which, in a very special manner, attaches to this office to which you have chosen me.

ONLY TWO EXECUTIVES

NAMED BY ALL VOTERS.

Did you ever stop to think that there are, after all, only two positions in the nation that are filled by the vote of all of the voters—the president and the vice president? That makes it particularly necessary for the vice president and for me to conceive of our duties toward the entire country. I speak, therefore, tonight to and of the American people as a whole.

My most immediate concern is in carrying out the purposes of the

My most immediate concern is in carrying out the purposes of the great work program just enacted by the congress. Its first objective is to put men and women now on the relief rolls to work and, incidentally, to assist materially in our already unmistakable march toward recovery. I shall not confuse my discussion by a multitude of figures. So many figures are quoted to prove so many things, sometimes it depends upon what paper you read and what broadcast you hear. Therefore, let us keep our minds on two or three simple essential facts in connection with this problem of unemployment.

It is true that while business and industry are definitely better our relief rolls are still too large. However, for the first time in five years, the relief rolls have declined instead of increased during the winter months. They are still declining. The simple fact is that many million more people have private work today than two years ago today, or one year ago today, and every day that passes offers more chances to work for those

TWO KINDS OF MEASURES

NEEDED FOR SOLUTION.

In spite of the fact that unemployment remains a serious problem hereas in every other nation, we have come to recognize the possibility and the necessity of certain helpful remedial measures. These measures are of two kinds. The first is to make provisions interested to relieve, to minimize and to prevent future unemployment; the second is to establish the practical means to help those who are unemployed in this present emergency. Our social security legislation is an attempt to answer the first of these testing these testing these testing the second is the second in the present of the second in this present of the second is to establish the practical means to help those who are unemployed in this present of the second is to establish the practical means to help those who are unemployed in this present of the second is to establish the practical means to help those who are unemployed in this present of the second is to establish the practical means to help those who are unemployed in this present of the second is to establish the practical means to help those who are unemployed in this present of the second is to establish the practical means to help those who are unemployed in this present of the second is to establish the practical means to help those the second is to establish the practical means to help those the second is the second in the second in the second is the se

The program for social security now pending before the congress is a necessary part of the future unemployment policy of the government. While our present and projected expenditures for work relief are wholly within the reasonable limits of our national credit resources, are wholly within the reasonable limits of our national credit resources, it is obvious that we cannot continue to create governmental deficits for that purpose year after year.

We must begin now to make provision for the future. That is why our social security program is an important part of the complete picture. It proposes, by means of old age pensions, to help those who have reached the age of retirement to give up their jobs and thus give to the private employment when such employment is available. Moreover, this division will be charged with keeping projects moving on schedule, (4) I have felt it to be essentially wise and prudent to avoid, so far as possible, the creation of new governmental machinery for supervising this work. The national government now has at least 60 different avent this work. The national government now has at least 60 different agencies with the staff and the experience and the competence necessary to carry on the 250 or 300 kinds of work that will be undertaken. These agencies, therefore, will simply be on a somewhat enlarged scale, the same sort of things that they have been doing. This will make certain that the largest possible portion of the funds allotted will be spent for actually creating new work and not for building up expensive overhead organizations here in Washington.

Our attack upon these enemies must be without stint and without discrimination. No section, no political distinctions can be permitted.

It must however be recognized no political distinctions can be permitted.

It must, however, be recognised that when an enterprise of this character is extended over more than three thousand counties throughout the nation, there may be occasional instances of inefficiency, bad management, or misuse of funds. When cases of this kind occur, there will be those, of course, who will try to tell you that the exceptional failure is characteristic of the entire endeavor. It should be remembered that in every big job there are chiselers in every walk of life; there are those in every industry who are guilty of unfair practices, every profession has its black sheep, but long experience in government has taught me that the exceptional instances of wrongdoing in government are probably less numerous than in almost every other line of endeavor. in the history of the nation. It is a problem quite as much for private industry as for the government, FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES CITED FOR PROGRAM

We are losing no time getting the government's vast work relief program under way and we have every reason to believe that it should be in full swing by autumn. In directing it, I shall recognize six fundamental principles:

I now come, my friends, to the remaining business before the congress. It has under consideration many measures which provide for the rounding out of the program of eco-nomic and social reconstruction with which we have been concerned for two years. I can mention only a few of them tonight, but I do not want my mention of specific measures to be interpreted as lack of interest or in disapproval of many other important proposals that are pending. EXTENSION OF NIRA ASKED OF CONGRESS. The National Industrial Recovery

Act expires on the sixteenth of June. After careful consideration, I have asked the congress to extend the life of this useful agency of government. As we have proceeded with the ad-

As we have proceeded with the administration of this act, we have found from time to time more and more useful ways of promoting its purposes.

No reasonable person wants to abandon our present gains—we must continue to protect children, to emforce minimum wages, to prevent excessive hours, to safeguard, define and enforce collective bargaining, and, while retaining fair competition, to eliminate, so far as humanly possible, the kinds of unfair practices by selfish minorities which unfortunately did more than anything else to bring shout the continued to protect children, to elyminate to elyminate to protect children, to elyminate to fortunately did more than anything else to bring about the recent collapse of industries.

There is likewise pending before the congress legislation to provide for the elimination of unnecessary for the elimination of unnecessary holding companies in the public utility field.

I consider this legislation a positive recovery measure. Power production in this country is virtually back to the 1929 peak, The operating companies in the gas and electric utility field are by and large in good condition. But under holding company domination the utility industry has long been hopelessly at war within itself and with public sentiment. By far the greater part of the veneral decline in utility securities had occurred before I was inaugurated. The absentee management of unnecessary holding company control has lost touch with and has lost the sympathy of the communities it pretends to serve. Even more significantly, it has given the country, as a whole, an uneasy apprehension of overencentrated economic power.

A business that loses the confidence of its customers and the good will of the public cannot long continue to be a good risk for the investor. This legislation will serve the investor by ending the conditions which have caused that lack of confidence and good will. It will put the public utility constating industry which have caused that lack of confidence and good will. It will put the public utility operating industry on a sound basis for the future, both in its public relations and in its internal relations.

tion is one of the most hopeful results of our efforts as a nation to re-establish public confidence in private banking. We all know that private banking actually, exists by virtue of the permission of and regulation by the pepole as a whole, speaking through their government. Wise public policy, however, requires not only that banking be safe but that its resources be most fully utilized, in the economic life of the country.

OF RESERVE SYSTEM.

To this end it was decided more than 20 years ago that the government should assume the responsibility of providing a means by which the credit of the nation might be controlled, not by a few private banking institutions, but by a body with public prestige and authority. The answer to this demand was the Federal Reserve system. Twenty years of experience with this system have justified the efforts made to create it, but these 20 years have shown by experience definite possibilities for improvement. Certain proposals made to amend the Federal Reserve act deserve prompt and favorable action by the congress. They are a minimum of wise readjustment of our Federal Reserve system in the light of past experience and present needs.

SUMMARY OF HOPES

FOR U. S. RECOVERY.

These measures are, in large part, the program which under my constitutional duty I have recommended to the congress. They are essential factors in a rounded program for national recovery. They contemplate the enrichment of our national life by a sound and rational ordering of its various elements and wise provisions for the protection of the weak against the strong.

against the strong.

Never since my inauguration in March, 1933, have I felt so unmistakably the atmosphere of recovery. But it is more than the recovery of the material basis of our individual lives. It is the recovery of confidence in our democratic processes and institutions. We have survived all of the arduous burdens and the threatening dangers of a great economic calamity. We have in the darkest moments of our national trials retained our faith in our own ability to master our destiny. Fear is vanishing and confidence is growing on every side, renewed faith in the vast possibilities of human beings to improve their material and spiritual status through the instrumentality of democratic government. That faith is receiving its just reward.

Fast Comedy Mystery

A fast-moving comedy mystery with many hilarious contretemps is "Lightning Strikes Twice," which opened at the Capitol yesterday. A prospective betrothal party is turned into a screaming comedy that often stops short at the brink of tragedy when Ben Lyon after a night out finds himself hooked with two victims of reckless driving.

Laura Hope Crews, always a delight to those who appreciate fine acting, is the middle-aged aunt who takes to her bosom Pert Kelton, who by dint of necessity steps into the role of Ben's fiancee. A trio of what look like murders send the piece off with a bang and the lively comedy wings its way along with laughs and thrills constantly battling for predominance. Skeets Gallagher adds plenty of elan in a mild role.

A nifty sea captain in the person of Pert's hoofer partner cuts some gay capers, while Thelma Todd takes the part of the real fiancee.

A very unusually well-done combination of wit and good plotting goes to make this an outstanding picture of its type, and it's a type that is not over-running the shows. Laura Hope Crews, always a de

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

MULE MASTER WASHINGTON, April 28.—The president has deftly managed to get congress back on the right road since his return from Florida. He is handling it like a balky mule, using the feed bag judiclously instead of the stock.

The mule has learned it can get hay when it shies. It is thus have the management of the stock of the

In the arrangement of this new relationship you can now get a fairly good line on the route to be followed for the remainder of the session. It indicates the essential features of the 1935 Roosevelt legislative program will be enacted within 90 days.

ESSENTIALS A swift glance inside at the prospects will show you the following:

The Harrison bonus compromise will pass the senate substantially as it is. The house will reluctantly accept it and so will the president. Taxes will be left until later. Near the end of the session, an administration bill will be offered to continue certain expiring an administration bill will be offered to continue certain expiring excise taxes, not including those on checks. The liberals in both houses will make an effort to attach many soak-the-rich taxes on this bill. In the end, inheritance taxes may be instituted, but not much else. There will be no general increase in taxes.

The Eccles bank bill will be plucked from the grasp of Senator

Glass and passed substantially as desired by the administration. A few minor concessions will be made.

The NRA will be continued, although in moderated form. It will require three weeks to get through the senate, but there appears to be little chance for the opposition to block it, or to alter it materially. The fight against it is bogging down, at least for the time

The liberals have joined the lobby for the Wagner bill, but admit they will have difficulty getting it to a vote. Something like it may be written into the NRA bill.

The anti-lynching bill is doomed. The AAA crowd is consorting with southern democrats in an effort to revise the AAA amendments and save them, but the chances are not good. The only railroad legislation which will be passed is the bus and truck bill. At the last minute, the administration will try to continue Eastman's authority and may succeed. The roll of dead or dying items also includes the Guffey coal nationalization bill, the Farley investigation and the Wheeler government ownership for railroads.

DETHRONEMENT? Senatorial cloakrooms have been gossip ing about the possibility that Senator Pat Harrison may become czar of baseball in place of Judge Landis. There is no question that the matter has been discussed, although no definite offer has been made to Harrison. All he will say is that he is for Landis. The term of the judge's czardom is indefinite.

The situation seems to be that some of the baseball magnates want Harrison, but do not know what to do about it.

CROSSINGS Railroad men swear that the two or three hundred millions being set aside by Mr. Roosevelt for grade crossings will just make a good beginning. Their data indicates, there are 200,000 crossings at which more than 1,500 persons were killed last year. To eliminate them all would require $15,000,-000,000. The truth is, of course, that a hotel, in order to succeed against any worthwhile competition, must provide a degree of comfort and a pampering type of service to which only a few extremely wealthy and self-indulgent people are accustomed at home. And the hotel dares not affront the expectations of its guests with home cooking lest the stuff be sent back to the kitchen and the customers driven out, never to return.

Cotton Output appeared just as President Roosevelt's special cabinet committee was ready to begin a series of conferences on the cotton textile ituation and the claims of manufacturers that the AAA program was ruining their business.

Coincidently an international cotton conference was about to convene at Rome with Oscar Johnston, American economic envoy and Mississippi cotton planter, hoping to secure the preliminary agreement of several forcial countries, particularly India, Egypt, Brazil and Argentina, to sign an international pact to control cotton production and exports.

While hoping for the best, officials here were none too optimistic over the outcome of Johnston's negotiation. It was said foreign nations would have little to gain in thelping the United States dispose of the 4,500,000-bale cotton surplus held under government loans.

Commenting on increased competition abroad, the agriculture report said that "since 1891 foreign production, outside of China, has increased at a rate of about 150,000 bales annually, which compares with a little more than 100,000 bales in the United States."

ed States."
Threat Is Discounted. Previously, Secretary Wallace and numerous officials of the AAA have discounted the threat of foreign com-petition, pointing to the relatively small production of single foreign countries.

Foreign cotton production, exclusive of China and Russia, which do not compete in the export market, for the present season was estimated at 8,-842,000 hales, which is slightly smaller than the 1933-34 crop but about 10 per cent larger than the average production in those countries during the 10 years ending with 1932-33.

American production is expected to be held to about 11,000,000 bales this year under the drastic compulsory control restrictions of the Bankhead act.

Let's close with neat summation . . . A friend just said, "Haden has a great love for his state, a devotion to public service with no eye upon reward, and an unbounded love for humanity."

The price of them is very easy on the pocketbook, and actually they do not have the rubber odor when heated by body contact.

The question of shields has always been a troubling one. It is grand to be able to do without them. But not everyone can. In most of the country's best shops where dresses cost a great deal of money, they wouldn't think of sending a gown home witout shields. In fact, they always recommend them, because nothing is more unsightly than a gown that is disfigured by perspiration. Thin

Crackers Take Double-Header From Birmingham, 5-2, 3-1

So, they have finished it over at Athens, 144 hours of bike racing with unlimited teams. They are a lot of hours when put one after another even if it be the professional teams of two that are pumping the wheels along.

But I found myself thinking of Dan O'Leary, from the county of Cork. They called him from this land years ago and I know the first thing he wanted to do was put on his shoes and walk all over God's heaven.

He was a walker, was Dan O'Leary, a champion walker; the greatest walker that ever lived, even when he was past

I remember as if it were yesterday the day he came walking into my office. He was the old-style walker, heel and toe, and he had it in his stride. He was a bit fierce-looking, with his big white mustache, and he had a dignity that was dignity.

And Dan O'Leary used to win walking matches that lasted 144 hours and no relief except a nap snatched here and there and precious few of them. And maybe some one to walk with him now and then and hand him a sandwich or a bowl of soup which he ate and drank as he walked.

He was a bit down on his luck and he was all of 82 years then. Close to the century he was, but slim and straight and full of dignity.

He would ask for nothing, would Dan O'Leary, who had had kings cheer him. He was touring the baseball towns in the days when I knew him, giving exhibitions of walking. At 82 years of age he would guarantee to beat any of the players at walking around the bases.

The walking was strange to see because even then

The walking was strange to see because even then

The walking was strange to see because even then of the season and his final Derby preparation.

walking was dead as a competitive sport. And the curious stride of the heel-and-toe style did look unusual.

And so the baseball crowds would send up a mixture of cheers and boos and a few cat-calls. But the old gentleman cheers and boos and a few cat-calls. But the old gentleman never let on he heard and he never mentioned it. And some of us would sit there looking at him with our eyes a bit moist. Old Dan O'Leary, king of the walkers, walking for a few quarters that baseball fans were willing to drop into a hat to see him walk. But he'd never take a dime he hadn't earned. I know now he went hungry often. But it never occurred to suggest charity to Dan O'Leary.

Thinking of it after seeing the dispatch from Athens, I found an old record book which tells the story of his great match in London. O'Leary had told it to me. He had said that on the last day he could not have stopped walking if he had wished. He could do nothing but keep going on and friends had to come on the track and pull him down.

This is not the only instance of such a mental and muscular fixation. In the Olympic games of 1912 a South African named McArthur won the marathon race and he could not stop. He came into the arena a bit mad from the strain of that long run. Foam roped from his mouth and his friends had to run out and pull him from the strain of that long run. Foam roped from his mouth and his friends had to run out and pull him from the strain of that long run. his mouth and his friends had to run out and pull him from the track. He was going on.

And the record of Dan O'Leary's great walk to win the English title in 1878 said that:

"Between 16,000 and 20,000 people were in the building to see the finish. . . . He moved mechanically . . . he was borne on waves of sound . . . except in the consciousness. . . . Vaughn was taken from the track ... he had no chance to beat O'Leary. . . . Thirty minutes later O'Leary reached 520 miles. Bouquets rained upon him as he made a final lap for a farewell . . . with a bouquet in each hand, and bowing feebly to right and left, he hobbled once more around. Friends ran out and bundled him in warm wraps and took him from the track."

He walked 530 miles to beat Weston in San Francisco. And that is an average of almost five miles per hour for 144 consecutive hours, so you know how little the man slept.

These were just a few of his great walks. And I'm glad I Sammy Miller, the old reliable, will take on Jimmy Trepon in the first match of the evening, starting at 8:15 his mighty dignity.

REAL ENDURANCE.

I get a great kick out of you, Dan O'Leary, remembering how you looked walking and talking. And thinking of how dozens of college boys go in and ride for 144 hours. And looking at your records in the books.

And I wonder if anyone ever will touch the record for endurance which you left them. And I recall you thought it your easiest one.

At Cincinnati, meeting a wager, you walked a mile at the start of each hour for 1,000 consecutive hours. The conditions provided that only one mile was to be walked each hour and that at the start of each hour.

It required 10 or 15 minutes for each of those miles and you did it for 1,000 hours, or 42 days, every hour of them. So that the most uninterrupted sleep you ever got was 45 or 50 minutes.

Doctors examined you at the end of each day and they gave you the $5,000 you were to get for acting as a subject for research work on the loss of sleep with attendant physical strain.

WORLD SENSATIONS.

They were world sensations then, those records. And O'Leary walked in England and France and in Australia and in Fr Germany. And never was defeated.

They proved nothing, of course. But they proved as much as any contest which demands endurance and stamina. Out of those old races came our rackets of marathon dances and walkathons, which are not competitions but traps for suckers.

Dan O'Leary passed on some years ago. He died, as I recall, in some obscure boarding house in some forgotten city of the middle west.

He had received prize money to the amount of per-haps $75,000 in his years but he saved not a nickel of it. He was, I believe I said, from the county of Cork. He was going to live forever and he always could walk.

Maybe it was all evened up in his mind. There is no telling. He was old and he was broke as money went. But he was not like the hulks which the prize ring tosses out, broken and done. He kept his pride and he made his own way all the way down

It was curious, thinking of the old fellow. When I started I had meant to write but a few paragraphs about him but he has stretched all the way to here. Well, keep walking, Dan O'Leary, swinging along on heel and toe. Very few of them that come in the office door are as real as you.

And he'll see that no stray ice pleks are in the way when he swings. Regan took an ice pick and began chipping ice in his ice box.

A waterbug came in sight just before game time today, and Bill, seizing a broom, swung at the intruder.

He missed the waterbug but not the ice pick, which was knocked against his knee, inflicting an injury that probably will keep him out of the lineup for several days. Woodward replaced him in the lineup.

Oral Hildebrand, the Indians' starting pitcher, was knocked out in the fifth inning with one out. Clinton Brown and Galehouse finished.

Greenberg's homer came in the eighth inning, when he hit one of Lloyd Brown's fast ones into the right field bleachers.

Greenberg hit a double in addition to his home run, and Sullivan helped to win his own game by driving in two runs.

The New City Champion

Addison Smith, the young Atlanta star, yesterday won the city skeet championship after two heetic shoot-offs with Jack Gray, the defending champion, at the West End Gun Club. Smith and Gray deadlocked with 96x100. Each broke a straight in the first shoot-off. And then Smith broke 24—he would have had a 25 but for a decision that called an incoming target "dusted" at station seven-and Gray broke 23 to lose the title. Staff photo.

are neaded for a Southern league pennant. But their hopes suffered a temporary setback, if not a permanent one.

For the Crackers dealt the Barons a double blow, winning the first game of their twin bill, 5-2, and the second game, 3-1.

Harry Kelley gave the Barons nine hits in the first game, but the locals were able to make only two runs off this collection, and the Crackers managed to get five runs for their 13 successful base knocks off Bill Hughes and Carlos Moore, Hughes suffering his first defeat in three starts.

Chester Martin blanked the Barons for the first six innings in the second game, and finished with a 3-1 margin, after giving up a tally in the seventh. Bob Durham relieved him in the seventh however. Murray and Shoun hurled for the Barons.

HUGHES IN TROUBLE.

Hughes had a mild attack of trouble in the first and third innings, harris, Kelley and Hill getting hits, before James, who had gone to center field in the first game, scored in a three-hit rally in the fourth, and in the fifth Hughes saw his exit. Triples by Harris and Taylor contributed to the four-run spree in this frame and after only one was out, Carlos Moore relieved him.

Moore, a former Cracker, was making his first appearance on the mound this season, having been suffering with an attack of the flu, and he did a fine relief pitching job, only in vain. Moore gave up only two hits for the remainder of the game, allowing no runs.

The Barons made a run in the second off singles by Trapp and Hughes, and the other one in the seventh when Willett singled, advanced on a single by Woodward and an error, and scored on an infield out.

The first five men in the Cracker lineup got two hits each, 10 of the total 13.

MURRAY ROUTED.

Atlanta jumped on George Murray early, and it was a good thing for Clyde Shoun, rookie right-hander, had things going pretty much his way, hurling the last five innings without yielding a run. Murray didn't last an inning. Moore doubled, and Harris sent him home with a single, and James' double invited Murray to the showers. Shoun relieved him and Taylor's long fly allowed Harris to score. Chatham singled and scored on Hill's hit in the second inning for the final Cracker tally. Norman James was spiked in the third inning when he and Easterling ran together on Cox's fly, and Onna returned to the lineup for the rest of the game.

Scott, pinch-hitting for Shoun in the seventh, drove in the only Baron run in the second game, scoring Etten, who had singled. Etten, Cox and Scott singled in succession off Martin with none out, and Durham was signaled to replace him. He retired the side without further damage, although things looked mighty shaky.

The crowd was announced as more than 8,000 paid.

"It ian't a bad wound, but the fact that it is right on the bone makes it too painful for him to play for about four days," Moore stated.

Chances are, James would have been out there again today otherwise, fo Oana has been in a bad slump. GLAD HE DIDN'T.

Eddie, who first planned to bench both "Sheriff" Dave Harris and the Prince, because neither was hitting, is glad now that he didn't do so in the case of the former. The "Sheriff" had a big day, driving in two runs with a double and triple in the first game and one in the second with a game and one in the second with game and one in the second with single.

"We looked a whole lot better Sunday and I hope we can keep it up this week, now that we are hitting better," Manager Moore added. The Crackers made 13 hits off Bill Hughes and Carlos Moore in the first game and 10 off Murray and Shoun in the second.

Harry Kelley pitched a steady game to turn in his third victory in the first game, while Chester Martin, the lone left-hander, won his first start of the season in the second. Martin pitched fine ball for five innings, but weakened in the seventh and Bob Durham relieved him. HILL DOES WELL.

Moore announced that he would keep young Johnny Hill, whose hitting and all-around play was a feature yesterday, at third base for awhile and that he (Moore) would continue to play second. He doesn't expect Lipscomb to return to the lineup for at least five days and possibly longer. He wrenched a knee Friday.

Oana will return to center field today in the only change and Moore expects the big fellow to snap out of his slump.

"He's too good a hitter to stay in a rut like that," he pointed out.

Moore said he would send Bill Schmidt to the box in the series opener with the Travelers today, which starts at 4 p. m., the new time. The Crackers are here all week, playing Little Rock Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and Memphis, the league leader, Thursday, Friday and Saturday."

Shifts to Pimlico

BALTIMORE, April 28.—(F)—The racing scene in Maryland shifts tomorrow to Pimlico, where the $25,000 Preakness will be run.

The Baltimore spring handicap, a $2,500 added six-furlong jaunt for three-year-olds and up, tops the eightevent opening card.

The daily double, betting innovation introduced in Maryland this spring, is expected to draw large crowds during the two-week meeting. It was used at Bowie, but not at Havre de Grace, which closed a successful season yesterday. Daily betting there averaged close to $300,000.

The 62-year-old Preakness will be run May 11, the closing day. M. L. Daiger, secretary of the Maryland Jockey Club, which operates Pimlico, said demands for reserved seats and here.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—
Democratic leaders, already twice defeated, determined today on a powerful effort to break the senate's antilynching filibuster tomorrow and clear the way for progress on the Harrison bonus compromise and pressing administration legislation.

Strategy devised to sidetrack the anti-lynching measure involved adoption first of Senator Costigan's, democrat, Colorado, motion to take up his bill. Then immediately Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, would move to consider the bonus bill. If Harrison's motion carried, the antilynching bill would be shunted back to the calendar.

JUST SO BIG as to encompass the needs of all who have made Rich's a tradition!

JUST SO BIG as to keep up with every need of every member of your family !

JUST SO BIG as to be a vital, vibrating influence in the life of our prosperous modern community.

and still NOT SOBIG that we can't keep the warmth and interest that makes you feel at home.

NOT SO BIG ... that we lose our interest in the individual problems of the many.

NOT SOBIG ... that you are lost in the labyrinths of space ... that we cannot still foster the art of intimacy.

For Rich's holds the enviable place in the life of Atlanta that only comes from 68 years of intimacy with generations. Growth has not impeded our tradition of "knowing your neighbor" nor has progress changed our ideal of personal service to you.

The DEBUNKER By John Harvey Farbay, Ph.D.

The common glass snake is not a snake at all. It is a lizard. Of course, it is not made of glass, evan though it breaks into pieces when you try to pick it up. This breaking is try to pick it up. This breaking is due to a peculiar ability which only a few animals possess; that of auto-matically detwaching a part of its body voluntarily in times of danger. This is why it is called "glass." It is prob-ably called "snake" because it has no

Those words were used about In-dians by an Englishman who visited an island off the coast of North Caroan island off the coast of North Carolina three and a half centuries ago. He was one of the men who crossed the Atlantic in two ships sent forth by Sir Walter Raleigh. The plan was to explore the coast of land known, in a general way, as "Virginia." It appears that Raleigh gave the name in honor of Elizabeth, "the virgin queen;" but it may have been suggested by the name of an Indian chief. Wingina.

chief, Wingina.

The island, about 20 miles in length, was called Roanoke. The whites found the woods "full of deer."

A few days after they had cast anchor and gone ashore, three Indians paddled to the island in a dugout cance. One of them stepped on the beath, without seeming to be in fear of the strengers. He snoke to them in words which they could not un-derstand; but they gave him a hat and a shirt, of which he seemed very

After making a quick trip back to the mainland, the Indian returned with a boatload of fish, as presents with a boatload of lish, as presents for the Englishmen.

The next day a chief and many warriors came to the island in cances. The chief passed his hand over his head and chest, then touched the head and chest of each leader among the visitors. This was a sign of friendship.

the visitors. This was a sign of friendship.

In return for a pewter dish, the chief gave 20 deerskins. He made a hole in the dish, put a cord through the hole, and then hung the dish around his neck.

Among the pictures saved from early days is one of Virginia Indians obtaining fish. It is very quaint, and aims to show fish and other sea animals under the water. These Indians used fish traps and nets, and also speared fish. One of those in the picture seems to be using a kind of wooden rake, and probably is trying to capture crabs or lobsters.

Telling about weapons of the natives, an early settler wrote:

"Their bows are made of tough wood, and the bowstrings of leather (that is, strips of skin). Their arrows are headed with sharp stones, or the ends of deer's horns, and are teathered."

We also learn that Virginia Indians sometimes used the spurs of wild turkeys to tip their arrows.

Little clothing was worn by the natives; and, as a rule, their few garments were made of deerskin.

'Atlanta Will Be Represented At Sixty-first Kentucky Derby

By Sally Forth.

A TLANTA will be prominently represented at the Kentucky Derby Saturday. Already Atlantans are leaving for Louisville to mingle with the carnival throng assembling from all sections of the country. Dr. W. S. Elkin and J. J. Spalding, those born and bred Kentuckians, whose love for horses is inherited from Kentucky ancestors, will again witness the running of the famous turf classic. W. E. Chapin will be close by their side when the thoroughbreds sweep down the track at Churchill Downs.

Accompanying their grandfather, Mr. Spalding, will be Jack and Betty Schroder Kalkhurst. The trio will spend several days with Mr. Spalding sister, Mrs. Milton Young, at Lexington. They will motor to Louisville on Saturday morning. Scott Hudson Sr., who will spend a few days with his brother, Banks Hudson, at Danville, prior to Derby day, will join the motor caravan traveling to the Derby city

Rhododendron Club Gives Tea, Exhibit At Mrs. Partridge's

A silver tea and exhibit was sponsored by the Rhododendron Club last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. E. R. Partridge, 981 Oakdale road. Pastel-shaded flowers were arranged artistically in the rooms in which guests were received. Silver traps holding sandwiches and sweets and compotes holding yellow and lavender mints completed the arrangement.
